It is announced that the conference is likely to take action regarding estah shment of branch offices in the Orient, probably at Cairo and Shanghai, this information coming from Dr. Ernest H. Cherrington, general secretary, William E. ("Pussyfoot") Johnson, who is to return to Cairo, delayed his salling in order to be here. Foreign shores also were heard from today through the Rev. Gifford Gordon of Melbourne, field secretary of the World League in Australia.

Pointing out the menace of the in-ternational wet bloc created in oppo-sition to American prohibition, Dr. McBride said:

The world wets are challenging both the ability and stability of the United States Government in building an international liquor organization. The traffic in liquor has invaded every land and is rapidly perfecting an international alcoholic traffic.

In this fear they justified in their minds the launching of the world-wide wet movement.

These same liquor interests held their biennial, international congress in the Savoy Hotel, London, Eng., in June of this year, and the minutes of that congress record no retraction from the international policy established by them two years previous.

British Labor Ministry Suffers Defeat Again

By The Associated Press By The Associated Press
London, July 18
THE MacDonald Government was defeated in the House of Commons today by a vote of 171 to 149 during the consideration of the unemployment insurance bill.
The vote was on an amendment offered by Liberal and Conservative members, which was carried despite Labor opposition. The Government's reversal is not considered important, and there is no question of the Prime Minister's resigning.

RACE CLASH RELIEF POSSIBLE, SPEAKER TELLS INSTITUTE

Tempering of Bitterness Held Duty of Christian Nations-Asia Cited as Crossroads

Special- from Monitor Bureau CHICAGO. July 18-The "clash of color," setting races in antagonism one to another from the Orient to mselves in foreign lands, and in America, presents a problem which erican state referendums this fall Sir Valentine Chirol, formerly direc-American state referendums this fall Sir Valentine Chirol, formerly direc-will carry the fighting back to the tor of the foreign department of The United States. London Times, held is not without solution, in concluding his lectures at the Harris Foundation Institute of International Polities. Of its overcoming he vouchsafed:

The more firmly we ourselves be-lieve in the superiority of a civiliza-tion which, so far, it has been the privilege of the white man to build up in his Occidental homelands, the more are we bound by its principles and the principles of the common Christianity which are its foundations to do all in our power to temper the bitterness of a racial discord which, if it spreads and deepens, may threaten the future of the whole human race.

Often as our own practice may have fallen short of our ideals, the common civilization of the Occident to which America belongs, quite as much as Europe, must surely set before us definite ideals for which we should all strive as nations and as individ-

Sir Valentine declared that more than ever before the peaceful readjust-ment of the relations between the Occident and the Orient depends upon the solution of the race problem in Asia. He observed:

All the manifold discontents of the Orient are bound up together in the clash of color. This is nothing new. But it has acquired a new signifi-cance with the white man's assumption of superior and indefeasible rights based on the superiority of his rights based on the superiority of his race.

The Oriental, who for a time admitted and acquiesced with almost fatalistic resignation in the white man's superiority, denies it today—denies it sometimes passionately—for all his atavistic instincts, reacting against the aggressive impact of the Occidental civilization, rebel as never before against it, sometimes contemptuously, because increasing intercourse has made him too familiar with the seamy side of our civilization, sometimes because he has assimilated enough of its finer ideals to claim the rights of equal partnership claim the rights of equal partnership in all that is best of it.

So long as personal intercourse be-tween the Occident and the Orient was ween the Occident and the Orient was confined within very narrow limits the white man laid much less stress than he does today on mere racial superiority. To India, for instance, England has sent out on the whole

Increased Difficulties

Social intercourse between people of different races with different beliefs and different customs and different domestic institutions was always diffi-cult, but it has become far more diffloult with increased facilities of commodern natural scientific appliance munication and the introduction of and industrial tradinig methods, ne cessitating the employment in ordinate capacities of a type of Europeans with whwom the Orient was hitherto unfamiliar, with plenty of good qualities, but rather more prone than those of better breeding and education to boast of their racial superiority and to impress their sense of it somewhat roughly upon the Indians with whom they rub shoulders. It cannot be deriled that racial hatred has often had its origin in the rancour caused by personal insults to which the natives of Oriental countries even of good position have occasionally been subjected by white men who fancied themselves, but were not, their betters. Industrial competition, at the same time, has intensified so rapidly all the world over that the Occident has been selzed with a great fear lest it should be swamped by the cheaper labor and lowr standards of life of the countless millions of the Orient which it has itself equipped to become its competitors. ordinate capacities of a type of Euro-peans with whwom the Orient was has itself equipped to become its competitors.

I have touched only on that part of the Orient which has been for many centuries interlocked in history with the Occident, but the same line of racial cleavage is deepening even in those countries of the further Orient, China and Japan, which have lived their own lives, almost within the memory of living man, in almost complete isolation from the Occident.

In America, you have the color problem in your very midst, you have it again at your doors in the shape of Asiatic immigration. We in Europe are confronted with it along the great are confronted with it along the great borderland of the Occident and Orient extending through northern Africand across western and central Asia and across western and central Asia from the northwestern Atlantic to the shores of the Indian Ocean and even beyond. Its solution bristles with diffi-culties, but for my own part I refuse to dismiss it as unsolvable.

Question of Independent Action Against Reich Results in Anglo-French Difference

LONDON, July 18 (AP)-France will not yield its opposition to the British proposal to give the agent-general of reparation payments and trustee for the foreign bondholders of the loan to Germany large preliminary powers in determining whether there is default by Germany in fulfilling its obligations under the Dawes pian. This position was made plain this afternoon by a member of the French delegation who expressed chagrin be-cause the proposals for a protocol submitted by the French and British delegations have leaked out.

The French proposal provides for concerted action by the interested governments, in the event that the Reparation Commission shall declare Germany in default, but confers ne specific powers in this regard on the agent-general for reparation paymen nd trustee for foreign bondholders. The French are objecting because in their opinion the British proposa would invest the agent-general and trustee with too great powers—of those which should be in the posses sion of a reparation commission—in determining when the sanctions should be applied. The British observers express the opinion that their proposal would pre clude independent action on the parof France whose protocol in this respect, the British say, is too vague.

While outspoken in his opposition to the British proposal, the French spokesman did not indicate but that he thought it would be possible to find middle ground upon which a complete accord might be reached.

Action by Washington

Removes Much Difficulty From London Conference By CRAWFURD PRICE

By Cable from Monitor Bureas LONDON. July 18-Such satisfac tory progress was registered on the committees yesterday that the fate of the London conference is tending to revolve around three outstanding issues, namely the authority which will declare a possible flagrant de-fault on the part of Germany, the sanctions to be applied in such event and the right of any individual ally to take separate action.

It will be remembered that a divergency of opinion on the first issue was early manifested. The Dawes scheme admittedly goes beyond the framework of the Treaty of Versailles, and the jurisdiction of the Reparation Commission was definitely limited by the allies themselves in 1919. These considerations, coupled with the de vote of the French chairman-opposed

Belgian and a French chairman. Much of the difficulty which faced the London conference has been re-moved by the notification that the Washington Government would not object to the nomination of an American citizen to the Commission, and there is a tacit agreement that he will be chosen either by the unanimous decision of the existing members, or failing that by the President of The Hague Court of International Justice -the appointment would be for five #### years and renewable. Alternative Proposal Made

Thus distinct progress is registered. but it appears that the British ment-presumably after enquiries in financial circles-considers even this arrangement insufficient to satisfy prospective investors. An alternative proposal therefore was brought before the first committee by the Chancellor of the Exchequer. Per cent's experience with the economic activities and the trustee of the foreign bond holders jointly report flagrant default and establish the same to the centre of the complete the compl subordinate the Reparation Commission to a prior decision of gentlemen who primarily represent the subscribers, and it is not surprising that the French have raised considerable objection to the new formula. The respective viewpoints are, of course, easily understandable. They represent no definite antagonism, but one side is chiefly concerned with establishment of conditions which will permit the flotation of an international loan without which the whole scheme falls to the ground, while the other is intent on maintaining the privileges tent on maintaining the privileges which it already enjoys.

Question of Independent Action

Closely allied with the fundamental cause, of this discussion is the question of the right to take independen action against Germany Great Britain has never admitted this right, for which reason the Reparation Commis-sion to this day has officially ignored the Ruhr occupation. It normally hangs on the interpretation of the word "respectifs" in the Treaty of Versailles, under which M. Poincaré entered the Ruhr in January, 1928. Today, however, this argument is no technical. France wishes to reserve its liberty to take ate sanctions, failing allied ment after flagrant default by Germany under the Dawes scheme.
The British delegates still concerned with the requirements of international dence cannot be established the French surrender the right to take separate action. The issue has, there-fore, become severely practical.

Restoration of Reich Unites Finally-to cite the third outstanding problem of the conference-considerable conflict of opinion persists on the question of the evacuation of the Ruhr Valley. The demands of the Dawes report are here perfectly clear. It calls for the restoration of Ger-many's economic and fiscal unity with no uncertain voice. But in French circles it is met with a perfectly in hand, and whereas wish to fix a definite date for the complete application of the new scheme, the French have prepared a plan for evacuation by stages. The program recently adopted by the Reparation Commission will assist the nference to reach a compromise on this point, but at the time of cabling, no agreement is within sight. It is perhaps desirable to emphasize fact that these thorny problems are being thrashed out by committee which neither Mr. MacDonald, M. Herriot and Mr. Theunis are sitting They can thus the better keep their rivetted on a long view. They with Frank B. Kellog and Signor de Stefani are meeting in friendly (at luncheon yesterday, today), and in these intimate deliberations lies perhaps the chief hope of successful achievement. The misunderstanding about the Canadian representation at the interallied conference here has been completely cleared up. J. H. Thomas, British Colonial Secretary, announced this in the House of Commons here today. There had been no loss of time on the part of the British Government in consulting all the Dominions on the subject, he said, and the Overseas High Commissioners had been sitting dafly in this connection.

the entrapee of America, France will be compelled to seek support from Italy. Thus, the fate of Germany will be placed in the hands of Renito Mussolini, who will naturally demand he be compensated by France for his support, the paper adds.

"This solution of the question regarding sanctions, therefore, is inacceptable to Germany." Der Tag continues, "because it does not guarantee businesslike judgment of Germany's ability to make deliveries and simultaneously opens the door to political intrigue. If the London conference continues along these lines it will set intrigue. It the London continues along these lines it will set up a situation dangerous for Germany, but it will not pacify Europe."

Dealing with the evacuation problem

Der Tag refers, apparently officially inspired, to Raymond Poincarés ex-planation of the presence of troops in the Ruhr, which he made last January. Der Tag recalls that M. Poincaré said France was sending engineers into the Ruhr, in order to secure reparations through coal deliveries, that troops were accompanying them for their protection. "If the engineers are withdrawn, in accordance with the Dawes report, what need is there of keeping soldiers there, since there are no more Frenech civilians to be pro ected?" the paper asks.

The public utilities nuisance. commission, by a vote of four to one, permitted the company to reduce the BRITIS initial talking period in the 25 cent station-to-station rate from five to three minutes, which is tantamount to 40 per cent increase in this rate. The increase in toll rates begins

30 cents, and is applied at the 55, 65 and 80 cent rates. Five cents is added at 30, 55, 60, and 65 cents, and then on up to the $1.15 rate. increases that were granted make only a small percentage of the in-creases asked by the telephone company. The commissioners voting for the increases were Chairman Henry C. Atwill, Henry G. Wells, E. E. Stone, and David E. Ellis, while L. F. Hardy refrained from voting. The official order reads in part as follows:

It is hereby ordered by a majority of the commission, that, temporarily, "peading final determination on the tariff filed by the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company, No. 4-T, and until otherwise ordered, that part of the schedule dealing with proposed person-to-person and appointment and person-to-person and appointment and measenger toll rates is hereby allowed to go into effect; and further, that part of the tariff schedule applying to part of the tariff schedule applying to the 25-cent station-to-station rate re-ducing the initial period from five minutes to three minutes is also al-lowed to go into effect, both upon the filing by the company of tariffs so amended.

We can see no reason for allowing We can see no reason for allowing five minutes for this initial period when the initial rates in excess of the 25-cent rate are restricted to three-minute periods. We believe that this latter will promote better service in limiting the time in which lines are used and in reducing busy reports. It may be well to point out that the company's schedule provides for a reducpany's schedule provides for a reduc tion from five to three minutes in the initial period covering its 15 and 20-cent rates on all calls except those cent rates on all calls except those originating and completed in the metropolitan district. Now a tenant will be allowed to sublet a limited portion of his ac-commodation, though not the entire house, since this might have enabled him to become something in the nature of a landlord, which the scheme is in-tended to discourage.

America as World Example
The liquor interests of the world are not, nor ever will be, different in policy and principle from that that characterized and still characterizes the liquor traffic of America. The defying, dynamic, deceitful and determined liquor traffic of the nations of the world will be just as great a foe of the church, the home and the state in the various nations until this whole fight is finished as it has been in the years that have gone by. The line between the wets and the drys of the world is a battle line, and it is a far-flung battle line. far-flung battle line.

Dr. McBride observed that the first question the missionary asks when visited by an American is, "How is prohibition succeeding at home?" The nissionary realizes that the growing liquor traffic in India, Egypt, China, Japan and other missionary fields will control his country if prohibifails in America. He realizes more fully than do many of us here Dr. McBride continued, that the ht is world wide and the destinies of these peoples are in our hands.

The National Anti-Saloon League superintendent pointed out that the eyes of the business, political and educational worlds are on the United States. Business is looking on be-cause it knows that "no nation drunk can compete successfully with the United States sober." The political world is watching because it "sees the future of a self-ruling nation wrapped up in the problem of whether, or not it can enforce its own laws."

The educational world is probably the most interested of all. Without a doubt, said Dr. McBride, one of the most important tasks before us today is to prove to the educational world that prohibition is a great benefit and blessing to the United States and will prove the same when given the oppor-

British Columbia Enriches Only Rum Interests." "More Bootlegging Than Ever." The writer exlains how this "ideal liquor law" is making the liquor dealers—not the Government—rich and how bootlegging and contempt for law thrive under it.

He describes seeing more drunken men one Saturday night in Vancouver than in four prohibition years in the United States though he had visited fewer than 25 of the 250 bootlegging clubs of the city. The Government, he says, is "selling" intoxication—forcing drink on the people by systematic advertising propaganda; despite "control" bootleggers have organized into drinkers' clubs and operated under pretection; city taxes have increased; the public debt has gone up more than 50 per cent.

Priests and Government officials are quoted as declaring that conditions are deplorable. H. H. Stevens, M. P., is quoted as saying. "Never in the history of the Province was bootlegging comparable in magnitude to what it is today."

LIBRARY REPORTS NEED OF MONEY

Declares Larger Appropriation Essential to Maintain Present Standard

Greater use of Boston's Public Library and its branches, greater demands upon it, and greater opportunities for service are noted in the annual report of that institution made public teday. At the same time, it is declared that certain conditions of uncleanness, insumicient equipment, and lack of books, over which the library itself has no control, are so great that unless these are remedied the Boston Public Library, which now ranks as one of the three or four notable free public libraries of the United States, must drop into the second class. Larger appropriations, authority to do its own cleaning of branches housed in municipal buildings and rented quarters, better lighting, and more quarters, better lighting, and more books are pointed to as the great needs if the library is to be kept at a high standard.

The examining committee which has worked as a committee of the whole this year for the investigation of branch libraries reports as follows:

The committee finds 31 branches of the library in operation. Of these, 9 re housed in buildings owned by the library; 9 in rooms in municipal buildings, and 13 in buildings or rooms leased from private owners. Not one of the buildings owned by Not one of the buildings owned by the library is unsuitable or unattractive. But the conditions of many of the buildings are a blot on the good name of the library. The first recommendation of the committee is that the library should be given larger freedom; namely, to keep clean.

Cleanliness and Lighting

At present, entrances are cluttered and drity; staircases are defaced and ill-lighted; the janitor's service to the branch library is in many cases highly unsatisfactory; yet the library authorities are helpless to improve conditions because these matters are under the care of a separate city deunder the care of a separate city de-partment. The branch at City Point is typical of these poor conditions. That at Dorchester is wickedly so.

Inadequate rooms, repairs sadly neglected, dirt and disorder reigning in rooms and halls—and the library hot in the least responsible for the conditions.

The difficulty can be remedied by the application of one of the fundamental principles of good housekeeping for public institutions. The library should be given by the city the money to do its own cleaning, when housed in municipal buildings. Divided responsibility is sure to stand vided responsibility is sure to stand for dirt and disorder. Let the united vote of the examining committee persuade the city to remedy this long-standing abuse.

The standard of order and beauty held by the public library may well be above the standards of other mu-nicipal departments. Let it do its rightful share toward lifting the others up, rather than to submit tamely to being dragged down to the

Another deficiency is the improper lighting of many of its branches. Mere business oconomy would dictate that an expert on lighting should be employed to go with the supervisor through the 31 branches and prescribe for the difficulties which he will find in 85 per cent of them. Even the new South End branch suffers, from the lights being too high, and has no daylight—an almost incredible architec-tural blunder for the housing of a li-

The Hyde Park branch, one of the best branch buildings, has poor light-ing in its children's room. The West End branch—famous historic building End branch—famous historic building that it is, visited by many as a landmark of Old Boston—has a lighting system most inadequate, the lights being several feet too high and of too small lighting power. If these most important, and modern branches must be judged faulty'in lighting, what can we say of the Mattapan, East Boston, Orient Heights, Dorchester, and Lower Mills branches.

The city should give the library a sum of money to employ an expert, and he should have power to advise and install excellent electric lighting in every room belonging to the Boston Public Library.

B. & M. MAY BREAK WITH SUNCOOK LINE

Indications Point to Cancellation of Contract in Near Future

MANCHESTER, N. H., July 18 (Special)—The Boston & Maine Railroad is considering the cancellation of its contract with the Suncook Valley Railroad. Cancellation would force the Suncook Valley to operate its own line, a thing which is said to be im-practicable from a financial viewpoint. James A. Hustis, president of the Boston & Maine, is expected to confer with officials of the Suncook Valley branch this week and the future of the road will probably depend upon the outcome of this meeting. The last contract signed by the two parties permits either to sever the agreement fol-lowing a 60 days' notice.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., July 18 (Special)—Motorists, traffic officers and city officials agree that the new one-way traffic system for side streets in the down town section is improving conditions, and as soon as the drivers become familiar with the plan traffic will flow faster and easier. ject of improving the morale among railway employees, and it was noticeable that the winning contribution (by an official of an outside concern) laid little emphasis upon the crux of the entire situation—namely, the necessity for more brotherly love and less austerity and vanity upon the part of those in positions of authority. DUE to the misinformation concerning railroad valuations, the Eastmern Presidents' Conference Committee on Public Relations, through Robert S. Binkerd, vice chairman, has prepared a chart depicting the value which the railroads place upon their property.

The figures in round numbers follow road Life depicts the arrival at Engle-

This has subsequently been raised $2,000,000,000 as a result of heavy capital expenditures in the last five years.
Therefore, the Interstate Commerce

TURKEY REGAINING COTTON POSITION

Than Decuples Number of Bales Sent to Market

Special from Monitor Bureau LONDON, July 7.—Turkey has made apid strides to recover her cotton position, which suffered a severe setback due to the war. This was brought out in reply to a questionnaire of 18 points sent out by the International Cotton Federation recently with a view to collecting exhaustive information as to the cotton industry throughout the world, except in the United States and Egypt.

Turkey produced some 15,000 bales of about 400 pounds in 1921 and this year this has risen to an estimated total of 160,000 bales. Improved methods have been introduced by M. Bayeus, a Belgian specialist, who is managing a farm near Adana. These include sowing in straight lines, which also renders possible the mechanical removal of weeds, hitherto done by hand. Labor shortage is the greatest drawback, and a suitable mechanical picker would find a ready market. Replies to the International Cotton Federation's questionnaire were re-ceived altogether from seven countries in the British Empire and these w printed in the bulletin of the federation. Details were also given of cotton-growing in Asia Minor, Argentina, China, Colombia, the Belgian Congo, the French colonies, Korea, Paraguay, Italian Somaliland and Limited over the Pennsylvania and the Twentieth Century of the New York Central at 9:30 a. m. Both trains pull into the station morning after morning, right on the dot of 9:30, on adjacent tracks, after having traveled more than 900 miles each via widely separated routes, the Pennsylvania having covered a shorter distance but over higher grades in the Alleghenies, while the Central has followed the "water level route" through Buffalo and along the Lake Shore. Spain.

The answers made by these countries show that although the cotton harvested by countries other than the United States and India constitutes only a fraction of the whole, yet the outlook for the future is promising. Of course in the different countries. different problems have to be met which decide whether cotton can be economically grown.

The two chief factors are rainfall Employee Magazine Pictures

The editors of the numerous employee magazines display real ingenuity in their selection of cover designs for their magazines. Of the several magazines recently issued it is difficult to select the ranking design, whether it is the Baltimore & Chio's effective presentation of the "Birthday Party" given its Capitol Limited with a group of pretty girls on the observation platform of the train, which is decorated with flowers; the Pennsylvania Mutual Magazine's appropriate July reproduction of Independence Hall, or the Boston & Maine's photograph of a group of boys raising the Stars and Stripes.

With due respect to current fiction magazines, in the writer's opinion the railroad men dress their publications in more attractive covers.

Vancouver Station Beautified can be eventually overcome, and in countries like the Sudan, Kenya and ready going on. In places where the rainfall is insufficient but where irrigation is possible, this problem is being tackled, as, for example, by the irrigation work now being carried out in the Sudan which will open up hundreds of thousands of acres to cotton cultivation.

dealt with in the bulletin is the effect of the 48-hour week on the cotton industry. This was discussed at the cotton congress at Stockholm in 1922 and it was decided to collect information on the subject. Ten out of eleven countries have a 48-hour week, either by law or agreement.

How a muddy stream in the center of Vancouver into which the tides of the bay backed was reclaimed by the railroad, is interestingly described in a recent issue of the Canadian National Magazine. A park in which 12,000 tullps have been set out and which is named "Thornton Fark" in honor of Sir Henry, chairman and president of the Canadian National Railways, now marks the site of the former stream. The effect of the boil-weevil upon American cotton production is described in an unbiased manner by an official of the Washington Bureau Agriculture. He shows how the high level point of 14,000,000 bales in 1914 > which produced a yield worth £1500, she may be said to have progressed well, as in 1924 she had 13,000 hecunder cotton, which is estimated to bring £720,000.

However, the lack of conservation of natural beauties of the terrain has been so overlooked that not until now has the true situation been brought home to the people.

The natural beauty granted so lavishly in the District of Columbia in diversified landscape of hills, ravines, meandering streams and marvelous, trees is being desecrated by modern excavating machinery. Ravines are filled with dump, trees chopped down by the wholesale, and hills leveled.

What was once picturesque country is converted into monotonous rows of cheap houses and concrete alleys. Forests are replaced by crowded brick structures baking in the sun. Much of this forest might have been added to the park system. Some plots of priceless trees still remain in different parts of Washington. Are these also to be sacrificed?

Old Estates Placarded

Beautiful old estates are being placarded with "for sale" signs, and unless these homes are preserved they will be given over to delicatessen shops and cheap restaurants. Conventional concrete and steel structures are taking the place of fine mansions surrounded by trees and shrubs. As these modern buildings are placed close to the sidewalks, the national close to the sidewalks, the national capital must soon become a typical modern city devoid of the special features which have been Washington's greatest charm and which it must preserve as the Nation's Capital, and not commercial city. In the northwest section, factorylike homes surrounded by concrete paving instead of a small circle or square of gyeen are being built.

Down town the charming old-time beauty of Washington is rapidly diswhile Connecticut Avenue is becoming a prosy row of garage salesrooms similar to middle Broadway in New York City. Close to the imposing Union Station, shoddy lunch shacks offend the eye and "for sale" signs promise further deterioration. A lit-tle farther on tumbled old frame houses stand far below the level of

A tall, narrow mirror hung over a mantel gives a bad effect, particularly if it is tilted forward. It should be hung lengthwise, or relegated to an upright panel-shaped space. A handsome old gilt-framed mirror is a choice acquisition, which can hardly be spoiled in the hanging; yet its loveliness may be enhanced by carefully selected surroundings. By hanging above a mantel it may take on too bright and hard an appearance, and is likely to be better on a dull wall in a softened environment. Hanging over ed environment. Hanging over a mahogany stand or console, between windows curtained in dark chintz, it would be extremely delightful.

The usual drawing room or living room should not be provided with more than one or two mirrors. If there is one above the mantel, another. perhaps smaller, in an oval frame, may find a pleasing place between windows or over a bookcase or a small table. In one case, in a family sitting room, an oblong mahogany-framed mirror was suspended above a low Martha Washington stand. The Glass of Fashion in the Home

Not all amateur decorators, concerned with the charms of their own homes, realize the decorative value of mirrors. In many cases, a mirror simply and attractively framed is better than a picture for a specified space upon a wall; and there is hardly a room anywhere in process of furnishing into which a looking glass cannot be appropriately fitted.

would fill it alone, and the textile softens the lines of the frame.

A vestibule needs a mirror, of any size whatever, at which a guest may examine the exact angle of her hat. A small, dark entry can be prightened and enlarged (visually) by means of a long mirror on the remotest wall. An upper hall can be suitably furnished with a tall mirror and a low chest, or with a chest of drawers with a medium-sised mirror above it. As a rule, a bedroom, especially one of limited size, looks better with a dressing table or a chest of drawers, surmounted by a mirror, than it does with a conventional dresser. The two articles of furniture can be purchased separately, often at considerably Mantels are difficult problems to those who do not possess old family portraits or works of art of sufficient excellence and dignity to be given a sposition of prominence above the hearth. In this small home of engaging ap-pearance, designed by Charles S. Keefe of New York City for a client at Kingston, N. Y., the ground area measuring 29x28 feet, has been ad-ioving early Dutch settlers, it has grown to be intimately associated with New York history and hearthstones and has assimilated native tendencies, becoming at last not only typically American but by far the most favored style of architecture for the home of modest proportions.

Departing somewhat from the present custom of creating the style in frame, the architect has reverted to the earlier method of utilizing stucco in its construction. The house is stucco over wire lath, white with white trim. No stain was used on the roof, the shingles being left to weather naturally. For a small family, the plan is exceedingly compact and convenient, comprising the usual complement of rooms in small space. Two things are to be observed. First that access is had to the house through the entry, a decided advantage over the customary plan of entering direct to the living room; second, that the stairs are inclosed instead of being made after the open string type, the additional space being thrown into the

DRYS TO FIGHT FOR WEST AUSTRALIA

Opponents of Prohibition Are Charged With Employing Disgraceful Methods

PERTH, W. Aust., June 10 (Special Correspondence) - Some sensational allegations against the forces opposed to prohibition were made recently when the Temperance Alliance assembled to review the position after the general elections. Dealing with the work of the Licenses Reduction Board, the report stated that that body had closed a few houses where the trade contributed little to the revenue. and opened the clean agricultural areas of the state to the depredations of the liquor traffic. The relicensing of one hotel was described as a public scandal, and the sale by tender of a provisional certificate for the opening of a hotel was "the most disgraceful thing that had ever taken place in Australia in connection with the liquor traffic."

The Alliance affirmed that it had been censured by certain sections of the press for making the question of a dry Western Australia a dominant political issue, but it retorted that the liquor trade did so without criticism of any kind "and it resorts to any sort of dishonesty to win." It was stated that in one contest the hotels were running free liquor in the interests of the man the trade supported.

Resolutions were carried affirming the ideal of state option, compulsory voting at prohibition referendums, and the holding of all referendums (except the next one) on Parliamentary election days. It was also decided to approach the Government and request that all hotels should be request that all hotels should be closed on all Parliamentary election and referendum days.

The attitude of the Presbyterian Assembly toward achieving a dry state was expressed in very definite terms at the annual assembly. The Rev. terms at the annual assembly. The Rev. G. Tulloch made a vigorous and immembressive attack on the trade, and criticized certain clauses of the Licensing Act. He declared the present system of licensing legislation in Western Australia was contrary to any system in any other part of the world. He quoted figures showing that, on account of the three-fifths majority and the 30 per cent poll required, the temperance forces would have to gain 2½ times as many votes as the opposition. Mr. Tulloch votes as the opposition. Mr. Tulloch described the system as "absolutely unfair and undemocratic." A motion condemning it was carried without Another proposal from Mr. Tulloch favored the Presbyterian Assembly aiming at total prohibition of the traffic in alcoholic liquor as a beverage, and urged the Government to amend the Licensing Act by removing the restrictions of the 30 per cent poil and three-fifths majority. An amend-

INDIAN FIELD OPEN TO ARCHITECTS

D. W. Ditchburn Deplores Status Is Lower Than in England

BOMBAY, June 15 (Special Correspondence)—"The architect of a country must truly interpret the ideals and aspirations of that country, while at the same time every building must correspond to the uses for which it was intended," said D. W. Ditchburn, president of the Bombay Architectural Association, when speaking to the younger members of the association at its annual general meeting recently.

Mr. Ditchburn took for his subject, "Architecture in India." At the outset of his address he paid a tribute to the antiquity of the art and said that the master-builder had been in evidence from the earliest times. The archirect's profession was by no means in-ferior to that of the lawyer or the doctor, and yet it was surprisingly deplorable that the architect in India should occupy a position far lower than the status enjoyed by his brother in England.

True architecture, according to the speaker, must include the æsthetic aspect, without which, however able the grouping of the architectural features might be, the edifice would be deprived of "expression." To say that an architect must reflect his country's ideals, he warned his hearin England. ers, was not to say that he should blindly follow the models set by his forefathers. The old masters were, of course, great, as were their art and achievements. But it did not follow therefrom that they should be slavishly copied.

Mr. Ditchburn advocated a respectful but critical study of the past works with a view to assimilating those ele-ments in them which were at once best and most suited to the modern conditions. He was fully in favor of a method according to which the pres-ent-day architect would consult the past, but not fall back on it—would learn from the past, but not get obso-

The speaker next touched on the restrictions placed by town-planning and housing scheme regulations on an architect, who perhaps had brilliant and novel conceptions, the result being a monotonous "soulless" row of buildings. It was also suggested that the introduction of different colored stones and marbles, which India had in plenty, would make for a consider-able improvement in the field of erchitecture in this country. United States Woman Champion Defeats Mme. A. G. Golding in Olympic Tennis feating Mme. A. G. Golding of France.

$\frac{k}{2}.=2.$

Strong, gusty winds forced Miss Wills to stroke cautiously and in consequence her play, lacked the speed and daring of which she is capable when forced to exert herself. The Frenchwoman offered her little resistance, however, and the match dragged to a dull conclusion.

Mme. Golding won the first game at leve on her own service, which was given a downward cutting twist off the racket and which took such an awkward bound that Miss Wills at first found it puzzling. She soon got used to it, and after winning the second and third games went on confidently.

The Frenchwoman's backhand strokes were a faial weakness to have with Miss Wills as her opponent, for the American sumply shot her own fast backhands diagonally across the court, making the Frenchwoman's battle almost hopeless. The point score:

Four Events Are Dropped From Future Olympic Track and !, Field Programs

PARIS. July 18 (P)—The congress of the International Amateur Athletic Federation today ratified seven world's records and 12 Olympic records made during the recent track and field competition and eliminated four events from future Olympic programs. The events eliminated are the pentathlon, the 10,000-meter walk, the 3000-meter team race and the 10,00 meter cross-country run.

Federation Council, succeeding F. W. Rubien.

Four out of the seven new world's records ratified were made by athletes from the United States. These were the marks of Robert Legendre, the former Georgetown University star, in the running broad jump in the pentathlon; of H. M. Osborne, Illinois A. C., in his decathlon victory; and of the American relay teams in the 400-meter and 1800-meter races.

The remaining world's records are credited to William Ritols of Finiand for his new mark in the 10,000-meter run; to E. H. Liddell of England for his mark in the 400-meter event, and to A. W. Winter of Australia for his new record in the running hop, step and jump.

The Humble Peanut Rises to Power as King Cotton Falls

HE boll-weevil, as a blessing in disguise, has redeemed the south from being a one-crop country. Cotton is no longer autocrat. It has been dethroned by the weevil and must now take its place as merely one of a democracy, or perhaps an oligarchy of crops, among which the once humble peanut is rising to unwonted prominence.

In 1910 the United States raised $12,000,000 worth of peanuts. A conservative valuation of this year's crop is $75,000,000. Texas alone has 200,000 acres. What is to be done with all these millions of bushels? Surely these millions of bushels? Surely they are not all to be sold on the street corners to boys and girls for five cents a bag? By no means. In the first place, the product is of high food value, higher even than wheat. The oil is a better lard substitute than cottonseed oil. It brings a higher received a substitute than cottonseed oil. price a gallon and can be made in the y same mills by the same machin-that is used to turn out cotton-

It has been found that the meal mixed with white flour makes a pal-atable and highly nutritious bread, and that it may be used for crackers and cakes. Peanut butter can take place of cow's butter, and pea-meal, which is a by-product of oil, makes the best of stock food. In addition to the direct profits, the peanuts leave the land better off than when they were planted. For, like many of their cousins in the bean family, they gather and deposit nitrogen in the soil.

Keeps the Mills Going

According to one peanut expert, there is little danger of surfeiting the world with peanut oil and cake, because the food value is such that there is a universal market for it. The south abounds in sandy soil that will produce little cotton or grain. If the peanut could submit specifica-Vast tracts where pine forests have stood may be made useful and valuable planting them with peanuts. The ttonseed mills have a capacity far beyond the available supply of their raw material and have, therefore, lain with cold furnaces for a large part of the year. But now that the machinery of these mills, with slight adjustments that cost very little, can be turned into peanut-oil plants as they stand, they will naturally welcome a stand, they will naturally welcome a new industry that will extend the yearly period of operation and at the tions a minute, and feeding properly, power gasoline engine. The shells are carried away and blown out like so much chaff from a threshing machine. The perfect nuts are carried along on two endless belts of canvas, on each side of which stand long rows of colored women, who pick out any dirt or shells that may escaped in the cleaning and hulling. At the ends of the belts the nuts fall into the bags in which they are kept until they go to the crushing and pressing machines.

Making OH and Meal

In making the oil the nuts and shells are ground together, and the meal therefrom is cooked and pressed out. There are machines which graduate the amount of the shells in the meal and the cake therefrom has a greater or less feeding value for stock, according to the amount of shell it contains. In some cases this feeding value is almost equal to that of wheat bran. Peanut hulls make an excellent bedding for use in stables, and by using them in this manner and hauling the manure upon the land their full value can be obtained.

In some of the processes employed the therefore the shells in the mean and the cake therefore the shell is not the amount of shell it contains. It was in the page at the pages of the parish register to cover her jam jars. It was in His power it has given you dominion over all ye same power and God is we same the hills of Atherstone, that the English lad was born of "honest and sufficient parents," as William Penn describes them. Its shell is analogous to the pod of a pea, but unlike the latter the fruit ripens underground. The crop is harvested with a plow, the vines being afterward separated from the soil by hand.

Special machines are now used which dig, clean and bunch the peanuts. By setting any of these machines to the proper depth it is possible to sever the main root of the peanut just below where the pods are formed and thus leave considerable of the accumulated nitrogen in the soil. It is estimated that the nitrogen left in the soil by this system has a fertilizing value of from $5 to $12 an acre.

Several local devices have been constructed, usually upon the plan of an ordinary plow, but having a U-shaped blade or cutter with one edge sharpened and so mounted that it may run underneath the peanut plants. It is desirable to use a double team, straddling the row, so that the digger will run at a uniform depth. Behind Deserted Beacon Street on a Summer Evening THE brown stone houses on Beacon Street this July evening stand cool and empty. Before them lies the oil-black macadam with its swift flight of headlights, rushing toward the green authors of Boston. Not one stops here, but in the air is the sound of volces, a pleasant almost "hythmic din, like the festivals off stage in "The Merchant of Venice" and "Carmen" One turns a corner in its direction and there behind high bushes and beyond a strip of grass lie the Esplanade and the Charles. Here are the people, the chatting.

calling. laughing, scolding, singing people. Girls parade in groups of two or three, six blocks up and back. Young men often lie on the grass in groups of 10 or 15, resting or wreatling, dreaming or teasing. Here and there are two walking, hastily from habit, so deep in conversation they do not see the girls nor the sunset river. Undoubtedly, these people, shop workers, tenement dwellers, one generation from the winding noverty and three, six blocks up and back eration from the grinding poverty and oppression of Central Europe, come to the Esplanade for the enjoyment of the evening. Often a breeze crosses the wide Charles and always the sound of the water is cool. Above the West End Bridge where subway trains crawl like luminous caterpil-lars, above the low line of street lights and headlights on the opposite shore and the gray dome of the Technology building, spreads a vast pageant of clouds—mountains, ships, shreds and bands of ribbon, camels in vivid colors, slowly melting into harmonies of lavender, blue and gray.

Behind the revelers curves the high red line of mansions: No tenement anywhere to be seen—no hint of ugliness. On the Boston side of the river as on the Cambridge where factories and garages are transformed into ilhouettes, ugliness is wiped out.

Except in the people, do you ask? Yes, there are Back Bay families who Yes, there are Back Bay families who bemoan Poland and Lithuania hero-where once gardens stretched to the river shore and the young Longfellow and other aristocrats once beached their row boats, but these critics do not appreciate the gayety, the social amenities, the prosperity and the happiness the newcomers express. No tice how neat and clean the young girls are. They have dressed for the evening as might a debutante. This one wears a batiste frock, silk stock-ings and sandals. That one is wrapped in a long fashionable coat.

Among the carefree young stroll a few parents, the father pushing the baby carriage. Here dart children and on the benches sit a half dozer old immigrants, the women with shawls over their heads, silently watching the New World go by. Re-freshments are sold under park regulations, ice cream cones and peanuts. At the wharf one open launch after another takes aboard its full lost of passengers—"Ten Cents Around the Basin." With the advance in wheat, prices of wheat four have taken an ascent. Prices were lifted 20 cents a barrel yesterday to $8 for best-known brands of Minneapolis patents, making a gain of $1.20 a barrel since June 9, and rye flour is up 75 cents at $1 for the same period.

The poor prospect for the corn crop. with the promise of a yield of 2.515.000.000 bushels on July 1, the smallest with two exceptions in 20 years, is considered responsible for the high prices prevailing for the, grain. Hogs have also shared in the upward movement and touched $8.10 yesterday, the highest price since last October and nearly $1 increase lately.

latter 4%, call attention to the improving financial position enjoyed by the concern.

The fact that these stocks have been selling at very low prices, rather than any startling developments in the affairs of the company, is part cause of this strength. United States Smelting preferred paying $3.50 a share on its $50 par annually, has been selling under 40 and yielding almost 9 per cent. Its preferred dividend is being earned almost three times over and it has never failed to pay 7 per cent in 20 years.

The common stock has been without dividends since January, 1921, but in the first five months of this year it earned $1.43 a share on the 351.115 shares after all charges and extraordinarily large reserves for depreciation, depletion and amortization. In the poor year of 1923 the company earned $1.35 a share on its common stock after reserves totaling more than $2.200,000.

The sharp advance in the silver market coupled with the Smelting Company's participation in the big sales of silver to Poland for coinage is of substantial help. The coal business is very poor in the west; cheap fuel oil is cutting into coal and with a general lettown in industry, demand has been further reduced. Silver earnings are going a long way toward offsetting the loss of coal revenues.

The Smelting Company again participation in the most recent sale of silver the most recent sale of silver the most recent sale of silver the most recent sale of silved Man in.

a long way toward offsetting the loss of coal revenues.

The Smelting Company again participated in the most recent sale of silver to Poland. Its portion was around 1,000,000 ounces and the price paid while not divulged, was about the market or 66@67 cents an ounce. The company produced about 23,500,000 ounces of silver in 1923 and the present output is at that rate.

Ahead of the $24,317,500 7 per cent preferred stock and the 351,115 shares of common are $12,000,000 6 per cent notes due Feb. 1, 1926. At present the company has in net current assets $15,000,000. a record sum and an increase of $1.400,000 since last December.

It is this earning power evidenced on poor metal markets, excepting silver, together with the steady fortification of treasury position that is behind the advance in the company's shares.

basis for recent buying of the stock.

Those holding the series "D" convertibles, however, have a three-year call on the stock at a price only six points above the market and an investment yielding 6 per cent at current levels.

BUILDING LOAN MEN

Cleveland Convention Also Will Launch Drive to Warn Public of "Fly-by-Night" Concerns

CLEVELAND, O. July 18 (Special)

—The 2000 members of the United States League of Local Building and Loan Associations who will convene here July 22 to 24 will conduct a symposium the second day of their convention as a means of beginning, if possible, national standardization of building loan practices. Speakers will discuss advantages of the co-operative bank plan, the New Jersey serial plan, the so-called Dayton or Ohio plan, the Pennsylvania plan and the guaranteed stock plan. The purpose of these discussions, it was announced, is to arrive at some general plan, probably a co-ordina-tion of the several now in existence, which will be suitable for nation-wide practice.

The approaching convention is said to be particularly vital as it will terminate a year in which savings and loans companies have made their greatest growth. The report of H. F. Cellarius of Cincinnati is expected to show that the institutions now have assets exceeding $4,000,000,000, and that they serve more than 7,000,000 stockholders, depositors and borrowers. The association includes 10,000 building and loan companies in 45

Miss Ann E. Rae of Niagara Falls, N. Y., president of the association and the first woman ever to hold that position, will preside at the sessions.

Plans also are being considered for the inauguration of an extensive edu-cational program, which will have for its purpose the prevention of losses to wage-earners through "in-vestments" in fraudulent home-building schemes. Statistics prepared by the Asso-ciated Advertising Clubs of the World will be presented, showing that citi-zens of the United States have lost $600,000,000 in fake investment ventures, and that a large percentage of this has been through the operations of "fly-by-night" building and loan companies. Coupled with this program will be preparations for the introduction of legislation in state and national legislative bodies to curb, by law, the for-mation of such fraudulent concerns. It is said that these laws will have a their basis the so-called "king" law in Ohio.

Believing, according to John R. Moxon, president of Cuyahoga County League of Building and Loan Associations, that home owners rarely are influenced by ultra radical elements, the convention will discuss ways and the purse strings of the coast were registered when the conference

Minnesota.

Among the early arrivals for practice increased shipping. The entire convention is the result of the belief by result of the Western Golf Association and a director of the U. S. G. A. He was twice runner-up to Evans in the evans. and different states.

The Purpose of Music With the Ancient Greeks

As I climbed the last long flight of stairs to Aspasia's door I heard her singing. Clear and high her voice rose, fell away again to the merest whisper, and as she opened the door she took the last full note, making a courtesy with mock serioueness. She captured my old felt hat and deposited it delicately on a table piled with Greek papers, even an old number of that very unique publication. Romeos, the work of one man, M. Soures, versified from the date line on the first page to the advertisements on the fourth; and a pile of books, one of those ancient Greek, "always ra

In pure Greek, of course; but one day Aspasia had translated to me her description of the Olympic Games of 1896, which ended in the victory of a young shepherd in the long race from Marathon, and a thrilling passage it was. She pulled my sleeve, nodding toward her father who was sitting in the window watch-ing us and who responded to my greeting with a charming Latin bow.

To Aspasia I said,

"You hear a great deal about Italian music; do you know anything about Greek—not modern Greek," his voice Yes, play some more, O cobbler rar

"We," he began, as if he were one of those ancient Greeks, "always re-alized the effects of music on mood and through mood on the personality -I think I mean character, yes, character—that is it. We had the enharmonic which roused us to great things, the chromatic which was plaintive, and the virile diatonic. It was mostly song then, the instrumental being just an accompaniment. We had no harmony as it is taught now, as it was in its first beginnings among us. Most of this about Greek music is theory, so little has been found; fragments of hymns at Delphi, among them the Hymn to Apollo engraved on marble, which was composed nearly three hundred years before Christ. There is something of the Orestes of Euripides, and some hymns of Mesomedes, a musician in the reign of Hadrian."

The old man switched on the light and made his way over to the book-case, the top shelf of which still bore "Well," began Aspasia, tucking herself up on the sofa and fixing hereyes on a corner of the grand plano which was losing the high light of the spectful that such a young and charming person could be so erudite.

"Not apples," I objected "Of course, apples. That's what it says, I didn't write it."

She thought's and apples, and odds, and remember what Plato said about it. "What should be the end of music if not the love of beauty?" He handed, me Bjirregaard's slander. Says, I didn't write it."

She thought for a long minute.

"There is another about the beautiful month of May, and the summer and the trees sprouting their leaves, and the buds blossom. Then the stranger guest longs for his own country. So at night he saddles his horse secretly, and the maiden stands beside him begging him to take her, with him."

"Plato and the Greeks on Music," so while Aspasia was pleasantly occupied with the cups and saucers, which was later continued by the singing of the kettle, I went through my pockets for the scraps of yellow paper and the stump of pencil which seem to be necessary to my mental efforts, and I read.

"In the most general way, I can say that the foundational idea was Pro-

"Beauty," I answered, turning a bit unwillingly to the book again.
"The Greek ideal was balance, a right medium—in regard to music a reasonable relation or proportion meant time, measure, rhythm. This proportion in education was to be taught by music, gymnasium, and dancing. But these three meant something very definite, and very different from that which we ordinarily mean by these terms. Greek education was literary, it taught the pupil to in-tone the letters correctly, or in such a way that they expressed the thought values the letter stood for. Intoning the letters correctly-so that they express the thought values they stand for makes what the Greeks called harmony, and harmony was the Greek ideal in all things. Diese Erleuchtung wird da gefunden, wo Jesus der Christus sie fand .in dem wahren Gottesverständnis. Während seines dreifährigen Wirkens teilte der Wegweiser Armen und Reichen, Gelehrten und Unwissenden, dem Pharisäer und dem Fischer unterschiedslos sein göttliches Verständnis mit. Es gab viele deren Stolz und Vorurteil sie in den alten ausgetretenen Gleisen des Denkens festhielten; es gab andere, deren freu diges Annehmen seiner Botschaft ihre körperliche Heilung und geistige Erneuerung zur Folge hatte. Die Christliche Wissenschaft beweist, dass dieser neue Wein der Erleuchtung zu der Linderung des menschlichen Leidens führt und der zeitlichen und gelstigen Not der Menschheit abhilft. Es war das klare Verständnis, das durch die Christliche Wissenschaft von neuem geoffenbart ist, dass Gott Liebe ist, und dass Liebe nur Harmonie und Vollkommenheit verleiht. Wer möchte nicht gern eine grössere Freiheit der Gesundheit, des rechten Denkens und rechten Lebens erlangen? Manches was die Sterblichen anscheinend am Erwachen zur geistigen Herrschaft hindert, sind die "alten Schläuche" des Glaubens an materielle Abstammung, die Vorstellung, dass das Gute und das Böse gleich wirklich seien. und dass das Böse, wenn es überhaupt etwas ist, oft von beiden die grössere Macht habe, und die Ueberzeugung, dass der Himmel weit entfernt und Erlösung ungewiss und schwer zu erlangen sei.

"New Wine" and "Old Bottles"

tears into thy bottle," might be said to indicate the tendency to increase and prolong one's troubles by hugging them in memory! Until this selfish habit is surrendered, sad and discordant memories continue to press on one, and the springtide of daily opportunities is overlooked. Another far-reaching phase of con-servatism consists in clinging to stereotyped views, which, acting like the blinkers on a horse, narrow the outlook and deprive one of the wider vision. Yet today it is noticeable that in commerce and industry, engineering and education, as well as in religion, ancient beliefs and practices are giving place to progressive views. The busy mother, the traveler with his wares, the preacher, the artisan. the physician, the laborer, one and all are blessed by the addition of spiritual inspiration to their daily tasks! This inspiration is to be found where Jesus the Christ found it,-in a true understanding of God. During his three years' ministry, the Wayshower imparted his divine knowledge to rich and poor, learned and unlearned, to Pharisee and fisherman alike. There were many whose pride and prejudice kept them in the old mental ruts; there were others whose glad acceptance of his message resulted in their physical healing and spiritual regeneration. But both had the same opportunity to learn something new and true.

The Master said, "Neither do men out new wine into old bottles: else the bottles break, and the wine runneth out, and the bottles perish: but they put new wine into new bottles. and both are preserved." Christian Science is proving that this new wine of inspiration leads to the alleviation of human suffering and meets the temporal and spiritual needs of mankind. On pages 281 and 282 of the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," Mrs. Eddy writes: "Divine Science does not put new wine into old bottles. Soul into matter, nor the infinite into the finite. Our false views of matter perish as we grasp the facts of Spirit. The old belief must be cast out or the new idea will be spilled, and the inspiration, which is to change our standpoint, will be lost. Now, as of old. Truth casts out evils and heals the sick." The Palisades From Spuyten Duyvil

Where can one find anything more subtly beautiful than the coloring of the purple palisades on the Hudson after a thunderstorm? The softness of the purple against the vividness of the gold and red and pink of the sky, turning the broad old river into a million sparkling gems, and giving to the trees a tropical outline as the shadows creep along. The bird in the topmost branch singing her lullaby in a clear shrill voice that can be heard above the gold and yellow; the trees cease sway ing as the breeze dies down; the river flows on its way to the sea; the robin ends her song and Peace descends, bringing with her night and its thou-sand tiny sounds, the first warning being the lonely little cricket, guided on his way by the cheerful fireflies danc-ing amidst the fragrance of the sweet

THE Psalmist's cry, "Put thou my | his followers to heal sickness and sin, fear and dementia? It was the clear understanding, again revealed through Christian Science, that God is Love, and that Love bestows only harmony and perfection. Who would not gladly rise into greater freedom in all matters of health, right thinking, and right living? Some of the seeming obstacles between mortals and the awakening to spiritual dominion are the "old bottles" of belief in a material origin, the notion that good and evil are equally real, and that evil is, if anything, often the more powerful factor of the two; and the conviction that heaven is far

Through Christian Science, practical deliverance from sin and sickness. sorrow and poverty, is found here and now in the study of the Bible and the Christian Science textbook and in the application of their teachings. Each day's inspiration is found to be equal to each day's needs. Mankind is apt to think of Deity as afar off and difficult of approach; but Paul says that He is "not far from every one of us: for in him we live, and move, and have our being." The tale is told of certain shipwrecked mariners, who, although parched with thirst and surrounded by pure water, failed to lower their buckets. because they mistakenly believed themselves to be adrift in salt water. Their wrong sense of environment robbed them of the blessing at hand. Since God is ever present and always omnipotent, mortals need only cast out their fears and trust the creator for their health, their happiness, the abounding supply of every true need. The "old bottles" of stereotyped views of religion and medicine can neither contain nor retain the "new wine" of spiritual inspiration, resulting in increased health and harmony.

One needs promptly and persistently to discard whatever is unworthy to be harbored in memory. Thus lightened of false burdens, the outlook grows brighter, the step more buoyant and carefree. It has been well said that Christian Science takes the stoop out of a man's shoulders. This is in part accomplished by relieving one of the pressure of futile regrets and memories, and lifting thought to the grateful contemplation of present blessings.

THE political wiseacres were in fine fettle yesterday. The weather was bright, and fair, and cool. The political prophets, while bright enough, were anything but cool. Each heatedly prophesied the overwhelming victory of his own ticket. To Mr. C. W. Barron, eminent Bostonian, should be given the palm for firmness of conviction. He prophesies the election of the Republican ticket by 10,000,000 plurality, an addition of a paltry 3,000,000 to President Harding's record-breaking vote. There is a certain plausibility about the argument on which Mr. Barron bases his conclusions. He says that the Radicals will not see the name of Bryan on the Democratic ticket, which was intended to tempt them, but will observe only Davis, and therefore vote against him. On the other hand, the conservative business interests will not see Davis; they will see Bryanonly, and therefore turn in panic to the Republican ticket.

It may be so, but along comes Mr. Isadore Dockweiler, of the Pacific coast, who takes a view as far removed from that of the Boston financial journalist as is the Golden Gate from Sandy Hook. Mr. Dockweiler sees the conservative interests of the country flocking to the Democratic ticket. And why? Because they will be appalled by the possibility that if there is anything like a close vote between the two major parties the La Follette defection may throw the election into Congress. Such a deadlock would be disastrous to financial interests, and Mr. Dockweiler is confident that in order to avert it they will take the obvious course of electing Davis and Bryan by a monumental majority. Of course, he gives to this ticket the State of California, basing this prophecy upon the presence there of "great numbers of League of Nations Republicans." Perhaps this assertion may stir the Hon. Hiram Johnson, whose long-continued silence is one of the mysteries of the moment, into his accustomed fluency of speech.

Lesser luminaries blazed brightly in the political heavens. Congressman Edward T. Taylor, Democrat, of Colorado, was so influenced by the atmosphere of the White House when calling there Thursday that he assured the President that the Democratic ticket in Colorado would suffer more greatly than the Republican from the La Follette candidacy. This was echoed by Secretary Work. But, on the other hand, the redoubtable Tom Taggart, who had almost all Democrats favoring the nomination of his candidate, Senator Ralston, except the Senator himself, declares that because of the La Follette defection, and its own inherent strength, the Davis ticket will certainly carry Indiana, and probably Ohio, Michigan, and Illinois as well.

Lest Mr. Davis should be unduly elated by this prophecy, it may be noted that former Senator Goff of West Virginia insists that the Democratic candidate will lose his native State by from 50,000 to 60,000 votes. As for New York, his adopted State, former Senator Calder is quoted as saying that it will go not less than 500,000 against Davis. It would seem, indeed, in the case of this presidential nominee, the last State of this man is worse

Lest it be thought that the spirit of prophecy and the gift of tongues has descended only upon members of the two leading parties, let us conclude with the moderate claim of Mr. Arthur Holder, the Secretary of the Progressive Party, who assures all who are willing to read his interview that Senator La Follette will carry twentyfive states. He refrains from enumerating all twentyfive, but among those of which he is certain are Missouri. Kansas, and Oklahoma. As yet no one has proplessied the carrying of New York by La Follette, of South Carolina by Coolidge, or of Maine by Davis.

Let us not be unduly excited by this clash of opinions. For more than three months now the people of the United States will have the opportunity of listening daily to such words of wisdom from the advocates of the warring parties. A recent bulletin sent out from Washington estimates the gross cost of the national election, exclusive of moneys paid out in senatorial and congressional campaigns, at something more than $30,000,000. America pays high for its quadrennial political orgy!

Is IT a pure coincidence that the two countries which led all others in the Olympic Games at Paris-the United States and Finland-should also be the two countries that have adopted prohibition? Of course it would be futile to assert that prohibition has directly contributed to these athletic victories. In neither country has the law been enacted long enough to affect the rearing of these remarkable young men, but it goes without saying that the winners are not habitual partakers of alcoholic stimulants. Even the most fanatical partisans of the liquor traffic will hardly contend that drink promotes athletic prowess or that a worldbeating Olympic team is to be recruited in the saloons.

Prohibition and Olympic Winners

But even if these Olympic victories cannot be claimed as fruits of prohibition, it is nevertheless true that prohibition and athletic excellence are both concording indications of a certain stage of advancement, proofs of progress both in moral health and in physical development. Prohibition cannot be made into law in any free and self-governing country unless a large proportion of the population has already decided to abstain from alcohol, and winning Olympic teams cannot be produced unless the Nation's general physical condition is good.

A drunken and demoralized population is not likely to adopt prohibition, and neither is a race of weaklings fit to produce Olympic winners. Both prohibition and victory in the Olympic Games are hopeful symptoms. The "runner-up" countries in the Olympics were also, sig-t nificantly enough, the very ones in which the temperance movement is strong, and though a country like Sweden does not have total prohibition it has done much toward restricting the sale of alcohol and limiting its use, and in England prohibition is more seriously considered than on the continent. In both Finland and the United States it is the farming population in the interior that is the mainstay of prohibition, and it will hardly be questioned that it is the country districts that yield the best athletes. Not many habitual tipplers' sons wear the Olympic crown.

In both Finland and the United States the law is broken by sniugglers, secret distillers and their customers, particularly along the seacoasts facing alcohol-producing regions. In both countries there is corruption among officials, who wink at violations, and in both countries there are politicians who do the law only lip service, who vote "dry" but act "wet," Before the national elections in Finland this spring the "Association for Temperance Without Prohibition" requested the different parties to refrain from mentioning prohibition on their programs, so that each representative elected would be free to vote according to his personal desires and convictions, but prohibition has too much of a popular appeal for such subterfuges and evasions. In the United States, also; many politicians who are "personally wet" are "politically dry," which proves that they think the majority of their electors favor prohibition.

In both countries prohibition may get temporary set-backs, just as it is far from certain that the American and Finnish teams will always lead all others in future Olympic Games: but it is also certain that progress toward prohibition is being made in a number of countries, and that to defeat the boys from America and Finland will require rigorous training without alcoholic stimulants.

CHINA, in 1924, has witnessed a recrudescence of violence against Europeans and Americans, the offenders usually, if not always, being natives of the lower class. The bandit outrages, opening with Lincheng's wholesale kidnapings in May, 1923, stand forth strikingly, but these neither sum the list nor index it at its worst. The assassination of E. C.

Hawley only the other day was the eleventh similar incident in as many weeks. And the situation grows worse. An anti-foreign tide seems to be rising. On July 4 (some may note a perverse appositeness in the date) a Peking correspondent cabled: "A growing anti-foreign feeling is manifest among people and officials alike; the vernacular press is written wholly in menacing tone." The reason for this deplorable condition has been explained too often again to be elaborated. It is the fact itself and its possible (and unhappy!) consequence which demands comment. For, if these crimes continue (and they show no least sign of lessening), it is more than a little probable that the states whose nationals stand in increasing jeopardy will, unfortunately, feel obliged to intervene.

The appearance of foreign troops on Chinese soil, to police legitimately acquired properties and to safeguard ives, would be no new thing in the history of the Far East. Also, it would be as distasteful to the powers acting as it would be hateful to the Chinese. Yet furtherand it is this point that deserves emphasis—such a happening would be but a temporary betterment to an ntolerable situation; it could never be a final corrective. It would be a transient palliative, not a definite remedy. It might well "have to be done," and certainly it would prevent further present effects from the cause of the trouble, but it would leave that cause untouched.

In the dozen years since the Manchu downfall surprised two hemispheres by turning so sudden a page in the old chronicle of the Orient, the most puzzling of national paradoxes has developed there. A country which, at least potentially, is as rich as any the world around has sunk to a depth of virtual bankruptcy, to be understood only as one realizes that political graft is the same sapping weed wherever it grows. A people, invariably described by informed observers as essentially fitted for democratic government, have failed utterly to recognize that honest public affairs must be made the individual's business. They have concerned themselves with domestic matters, have pursued sedulously private interests, leaving the management of the state to the (relatively small) army of self-seekers, the dishonest and the daring. Each tuchunal banner bears the selfish Bourbon cynicism, "After me, the deluge."

In writing this, one does not ignore that other (relatively small) army of honest and courageous patriots, working to crown the overthrow of autocracy with the establishment of capable democracy: the reformers of the Koo sort, the bankers' association, the several chambers of commerce, and the teacher and student groups. But all of these together can as yet do little to cope with either the mercenary militia of the governors or the ex-soldier banditry, armed with European rifles. The tragic feature of the tangle is that their goal is the common weal, while the overwhelming mass of the millions that make up the commonwealth go placidly along personal paths, ignoring the future.

In all of which lies wrapped today's grave danger: governmental form without the fact, officials abusing authority to the losing of control over disorder, popular apathy failing to support reform. Is it strange that, in such soil, there has sprung to flowering a crop of greater and lesser crime, flourishing "as the green bay tree"?

Foreign intervention would be little apt to help the cause of permanent good government in China. possible, of course, that the reformers might be able, in an interim of enforced order, so to strengthen their lines and consolidate what ground they now hold as to make more rapid and certain later progress. To judge from past events, however, the appearance of "outsiders" more probably would give the politically minded opportunity to secure their own corrupt positions through specious appeals to a spurious nationalism." This is precisely what twice has happened, and recently. Sun Yat-sen, who, after ail, was the founder of China's new order, and so properly may be heard in such connection, declared, in his recent famous interview, that "chaos and strife will last here just so long as the powers interfere with the work of our revolution." If that be fact—as there are many close students of the situation to affirm-the non-Chinese officials, called to reside in the eighteen provinces by state or commercial enterprise, while unfaltering in looking after the safety of their people, must leave the ultimate salvaging of China to the Chinese.

One thing that needs no advertising is a convention of advertisers. But the importance and variety of what advertisers do for a living makes "news" of such a gathering as the international convention in London, and gives it newspaper space that might well cause the delegates to wish that some of it could be diverted to their individual products. For himself,

Advertisers, Advertisees and Religion

the advertiser is modest. Like John Alden on an historical-romantic occasion, his purpose is to speak for somebody else; and, unlike John Alden, the Priscilla public has no secret desire to have him speak for himself.

We live in a period that has been called, among other titles, the Age of Advertising: yet it is within memory when the pant-hunter pantless was panting for pants, and panted for the best that the pants market grants, yet panted unpanted until he implanted himself in a pair of neat nether garments of which the trade name is now remembered only by the older generation, in whose memory it was then permanently fixed. Such was the vivid and successful appeal of the advertiser, such the juvenile gayety, of young originality in an occupation that had been for centuries chiefly content to make formal and more or less truthful statements about its commodity, and had erred by choice on the side of mendacity. For advertising is older than newspapers; and the classical length of Addison's essays was in fact determined by the demands made by advertisements on the restricted space of the Spectator.

It is, however, a remarkable spectacle and worthy of record, this gathering in one city of men and women from all over the world, whose common occupation is to make eloquent and far-sounding the silent tongue of print. They are merchandisers who are not merchants; they include commanders-in-chief who plan as shrewdly and ambitiously to conquer the world with a safety razor as did Napoleon to conquer it with a sword. They are the makers of a new branch of literature, who apply the basic ideas of art in composition to the dissemination of information about soaps, and devote, very likely, more conscious intellectual effort to describing a face powder than did Shakespeare to describing Hamlet.

Who that has ever seen an advertising writer in the throes of composition, as intimate acquaintance may by chance have permitted, has not seen literary activity at its most concentrated? He walks the floor. He frowns. He takes off his coat. He captures an elusive phrase and imprisons it at his desk. He consults the dictionary, the encyclopædia, the thesaurus. He plespairs, tears up his tablets, begins again, ultimately triumphs, and an advertisement is ushered into the world. In London, so we read, the Bishop of Durham spoke in Westminster Abbey of the enormous influence of advertising in modern life; and Father Knox told his congregation in the Westminster Roman Catholic Cathedral that there was no reason to be surprised at the convention's slogan. "Truth in Advertising," or that anybody need be shocked at the idea of advertising religion. Peeresses addressed the advertising women, as was just and right, seeing that the advertising women have so often addressed peeresses.

The important and significant thing is the slogan. As said Chaucer, "Truth is the hiest thing that man may kepe," and when all the advertising men and women in the world (with a few insignificant exceptions) shout the slogan together, all the advertisers, who constitute the rest and larger part of the world, may lift up their hearts. For by this token truth spreads ever wider her mantle over the affairs of man, not because men are becoming better and better (as we think they are), but because they grow wiser and recognize more and more that "Truth in Advertising" is good business. And this convictionreaches out from mere buying and selling into the larger business of life, which is the business of living itself.

Editorial Notes

Some might question the validity of the decision recently rendered by the Civil Service Commission in Philadelphia, under which a policeman was commended for being intoxicated while on duty! It appears that a certain saloon had defied all efforts of the authorities to obtain evidence for a search without warrant. So the lieutenant detailed a policeman to buy a drink in the saloon. Some time later this man came back to the station house, showing practical evidence of the fact that he had obeyed orders. He was suspended, and at his trial the president of the commission asked the lieutenant if he had ever been able before to get evidence against the saloon. Receiving a negative reply, he dismissed the case with the comment: "This patrolman was drunk, but he got drunk in the performance of his duty. He was ordered to get the evidence on a suspicious resort and he obtained it."

Nor by any means the least important of the incidents occurring in connection with the International Advertising Convention in London was the gift of a massive bronze tablet to "Old" York from "New" York, This tablet was unveiled in the Guildhall by the Duke of York in the presence of members of the New York Advertising Club, and, as the Duke said in his address of acceptance, the gift betokened real friendship between common peoples. The inscription on the tablet reads

To the ancient and famous City of York, . . . this tablet is affectionately inscribed as an expression of good will and friend-ship from her godchild in America, the City of New York.

A Vital American Problem

JUST at this time, when the people and the press of the United States are discussing the causes of the corruption of public offices and the constant infractions of the constituted law of the country, it seems wise to give some serious thought to a problem which is among the greatest facing the Nation todaya problem, the solution of which would do much to destroy the many evils which the machinery of the American Government now possesses. The real cause of present conditions rests not with a few but with the many-with, in fact, millions of people; because—and this is just the problem—of the utter indifference with which literally millions of citizens of the United States look upon the suffrage that they are privileged

It has been said, and rightly so, that the American people deserve just the kind of a government they have. The government of the United States belongs to its people and should operate in the way that they wish. Those who have anything to, do with the various branches of government are (or should be) representatives of the people. They are more often representatives of corporations and factions or of their own selfish narrow beliefs.

Why is it that this evil condition does exist and continueto grow worse with the passing years? The root of the whole problem is the fact that an average of about 50 per cent of the registered voters of the country stay away from the polland do not take the slightest interest in the affairs of their Government. The errors which these selfish, indolent and indifferent people express, spring up and multiply in the Govern-Thus there is not much doubt that the machinery which is employed to run the Nation's business reflects the thought of

There are in these United States 54,500,000 registered voters. In 1920 only 26,000,000 went to the polls on election day and put an X before the name of the man they wished to have as their President.' For everyone who voted there was one who did not, with 2,500,000 more on this side of the ledger than on the other. Thus less than 50 per cent of the people were interested enough to perform the "tedious" task of voting, Delaware was the honor State, for 75 per cent of her people voted, while South Carolina collected the "booby" prize with a percentage of 8.5. In England about 80 per cent of the people go to the polls and vote, while practically 90 per cent let their voices be heard in Germany.

Another point of interest is the fact that radicals have been sent to Washington by as low as from 17 to 35 per cent of the people in the states of which they are representatives. The easy-going conservatives who remain at home and twiddle their thumbs on election day could easily eliminate these radicals if they could but be induced to perform their duty at the polls. Interesting, too, is the fact that in boss-controlled communities one finds greater apathy among the voting people than elsewhere. Awaken the sleeping masses and the bosses will be driven to cover and the machines sent to the junk-hear where they belong.

Several years ago the women fought a strenuous fight for suffrage. Now that they have the vote, are they using it in the way they ought to? I'm afraid not. It is hopeful to note that there is an effort being made to urge them to make wider

I wonder if you have ever heard of Mr. and Mrs. Conservative? There are millions of these distinguished people who remain away from the polls on election day because they feel their votes will do no good anyway. What is the result? Some big corporation or a legion of radicals desire to put through some legislation which appeals to their gluttony, narrowness and fanaticism. They put up, as a candidate for Congress, some gentleman whose character and political aspirainterests and for the fanatics to place their candidates in office. but he is in and that is sufficients. It is true that the more people who stay away from the polls the easier it is for the selfish interests and for the fanatics to place their candidates in

John Doe is a respectable, law-abiding citizen who does not vote. He says, "Politics are rotten: They always put up two crooked candidates for office, so you get a crook whichever way you vote. So why vote?" If all the John Does would only open their mouths and yell in the right way they could drive every one of the office seekers of questionable character back to the gutter.

Now the problem presents itself. How are we to reach the 28,500,000 people who are too lazy or too selfish to use the suffrage they possess, and to send them to the polls to vote for good government? The only way I can see is to carry the message through the newspapers.

I recommend that The Christian Science Monitor start a campaign to send at least 75 per cent of the people to the polls this year to vote for the man they would have for President. Let the press of the United States be urged to educate its readers in politics and government, to teach them to study aspiring candidates and pending legislation. Urge the voters to send honesty and unselfishness into public offices, and good government will be inevitable.

Perhaps every newspaper could be invited to devote space to a "promise	to vote	pledge s	omething	like this	: -

I promise t	o go to the	polls on	Nov. 4, 1	924, and	do pledge that
I will not only and unselfish,	and likely	y to do a	Il in thei
Constitution of	the Unite	d States,	etc., etc.
Name
Address
City
State
Kindly fill out	only ONE	pledge at	nd send to These pledges could be filled out by people eligible to vote and could be sent to some one newspaper or committee in each state. Perhaps the American National Press Association, or some similar newspaper organization, could appoint a committee to care for the work of counting, tabulating and giving publicity to the number of signed pledges sent in day by day. This plan would arouse a great deal of public interest. The plan would undoubtedly create a great deal of rivalry between cities and states. For instance, California would make an effort to get a greater percentage of her registered voters pledged than New York. And, believe me, Chicago isn't going to let herself trail in New York's dust. No! Not if she can help it!

All of this publicity would without a doubt bring the people out to the polls. A great deal of interest would be aroused on the subjects of better government, law enforcement, etc. The American people would derive much benefit if the newspapers can be urged to omit some scandal story and insert instead a few lines urging the people to pledge themselves to vote for better government. I do believe the plan is worth
